The Deutsche Nationalbibliografie (German National Bibliography): indexing of media combinations containing music from 1 September 2020

Dear Sir/Madam,

The approach taken hitherto within the Deutsche Nationalbibliografie (German National Bibliography¹) when cataloguing media combinations containing music was to list the entire work in the holdings of the German Music Archive², meaning that, regardless of content type, the work was listed in the Series M (Printed music and music publications) and T (Recorded music).

Changes in procedure at the German National Library now provide the opportunity to catalogue the individual components of media combinations in such a way that they are listed in the formally correct series of the Deutsche Nationalbibliografie (German National Bibliography). This applies, for example, to multipart monographs with parts containing notes as well as a text volume. Other examples include media combinations comprising a music album and an audio play or a music recording and sheet music.

In future, text volumes or audio plays will be listed in the Series A (Monographs and periodicals from the publishers' book trade) or B (Monographs and periodicals from outside the publishers' book trade). Parts with dependent titles will always be indexed in subject category 780 in accordance with the superordinate title. Parts with independent titles will receive the specific respective subject category.

The necessary change will come into effect on 1 September 2020. As of delivery 10 for Series M and T (available on 7 October 2020) / delivery 37 for Series A and B (available on 9 September 2020), the components of a media combination can be listed in different series according to content type. This, of course, also applies to the OAI interface when individual sets³ of the various series of the National Bibliography are harvested. We ask that you please take this into account.
